Downtown Denver will come alive with glitz and glamour on November 18th when one of the area's premiere gala fundraisers takes place at the Marriott City Center Ballroom. The 28th annual Denver Dinner, a black-tie-optional event benefiting Tennyson Center for Children, will play host to nearly 1,000 guests including local television personalities and business leaders who will all come together in support of the Rocky Mountain region's largest treatment center and K-8 school for abused and neglected children, aged 5-14.

The evening will kick off with a cocktail reception where guests will sip on Skyy Vodka martinis before sitting down to a delectable meal of either Chicken Tuscany or Eggplant Napoleon. Emceed by 9News anchor Gary Shapiro, the main program will follow, offering guests a more in-depth view of the incredible work being done at Tennyson Center after which guests will dance to the music of Phat Daddy.
