Tennyson Center for Children Names New Director of Marketing and Communications

Denver, CO— Tennyson Center for Children, a nonprofit organization providing residential, therapeutic and educational services to children suffering from abuse, neglect, mental health and developmental issues, announces the hiring of Maggie Frasure as the new Director of Marketing and Communications. Frasure was formerly the Communications Manager for The Colorado Trust.

“I couldn’t be more excited to welcome Maggie to Tennyson Center’s family,” said Micah Abram, Chief Development Officer for Tennyson Center for Children. “Maggie’s experience and background make her an asset to the organization. Her marketing and communications expertise will help us raise awareness of child welfare issues in Colorado.”

In her position with The Colorado Trust, Frasure was responsible for writing, editing, social media and media relations. Prior to this, Frasure was the Marketing Manager for Love and Logic Institute, Inc. in Golden, and spent several years in the radio industry as Promotions Director for ALICE 105.9 and Promotions Coordinator for MIX 100 in Denver.

Frasure received a Bachelor of Arts in Communications from Metropolitan State University of Denver.
